

Reduce costs with professionally trained employees

Realize the benefits of your system and reduce production costs, with professionally-trained employees. ABB Robotics Service offer a range of training options, from standard robot training modules to systems- and process-based training. You can choose if you want to have your training in an ABB training facility or on-site, customized to your own specific needs. Personal development programs for individual employees are also available.

ABB Robotics Service offers three different types of training:

Standard Robotic Product training
Process and Applications Training
Systems training
